

Notes on Contributors

Elizabeth A. Bowman is an independent scholar whose work with Sartre has focused on his unpublished ethics of the mid 1960s. She is currently finishing a book on that topic with Robert Stone. She is also an editor of Grassroots Economic Organizing Newsletter and has written on worker cooperatives and self-management.

Beata Stawarska is a scientific collaborator at the Husserl Archives, University of Louvain, Belgium, working on a post-doc. project on Merleau-Ponty and experimental psychology.

Mark Rozahegy is in the Humanities Doctoral Program at Concordia University in Montreal. In August, he deposited his doctoral dissertation, which is entitled “Between Being and Having: Incarnation and Corporeity in Marcel, Merleau-Ponty, Artaud, and Hejduk.”

Yiwei Zheng is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at St. Cloud University, Minnesota.